2023 Berger Entrepreneur Bootcamp: Innovating Successfully – Getting it Right!

Expanded Summary of the Panels

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 2023

1. Innovation, Exclusivity, and Relevance

The key to business success is creating a demand for a firm's product or service that cannot be met by the competition. The more relevant the product, the stronger the demand. The more exclusive the product, the harder it will be for the competition to offer the firm's customers an alternative product or service. Intellectual property provides the most effective method of differentiating a firm's offerings from those of the competition. Market oriented founders who understand IP rights can better focus the process of transforming ideas into profitable business lines. As an introduction to this year's Bootcamp, Professor Jon Garon will explain how the legal and business attributes of exclusivity and relevance can help entrepreneurs build market share and maximize profitability.

2. Key Business Law Concepts; Ownership; and Financial Planning

Entrepreneurs face numerous legal issues when establishing and growing their businesses. At the outset, founders must choose an appropriate business entity (e.g., a corporation or LLC, although other organizational forms may be appropriate), agree upon how the organization will be governed, craft the core organizational documents, and address other important legal needs, such as contractual arrangements and business licensing. Likewise, founders must make important accounting and tax decisions, such as entity versus flow through taxation (e.g., C Corp. vs. S Corp.), payroll and state income taxes, and tax planning for non-cash compensation (e.g., equity for services). Two attorneys and a CPA who regularly counsel start-ups and their founders will discuss these fundamental legal and financial issues and provide founders with a knowledge base to intelligently engage with their legal and financial advisors.

3. Community Resources

When starting a business, founders need all the help they can get. There are numerous governmental and non-governmental resources in South Florida that support entrepreneurs and can help you develop and grow your business. Today, representatives from Broward County's Office of Economic and Small Business Development ("OESBD") and the Florida Small Business Development Council (the "Florida SBDC") will tell you about the resources and opportunities their organizations provide as well as other important available community resources.

4. Lunch & Learn - Business Planning

The Small Business Administration describes a business plan as “an essential roadmap for business success.” As a business transitions from an idea to the implementation of that idea, a business plan serves as a tool for founders to address the key building blocks for a successful launch, including industry know-how, due diligence, the management team, other staffing needs, budgeting, and product pricing. During our Lunch & Learn session, our speakers will provide guidance on how to create a business plan, which will be followed by a hands-on business planning exercise for all attendees.

5. Operating in a Digital World - Privacy, Cyber Security & Artificial Intelligence

Internet and mobile technologies are essential for entrepreneurs seeking to scale their businesses. These technologies are rapidly evolving, as evidenced by the recent roll-out of ChatGPT and other AI systems. Entrepreneurs must anticipate how these technologies impact their operations and also understand how to meet regulatory requirements when adopting new technologies. Our panelists will introduce privacy, technology, and cybersecurity issues that entrepreneurs need to consider, including the importance of having appropriate business policies, privacy policies, cybersecurity protections, terms of use policies, and contractual arrangements with business partners who may be storing or processing data on behalf of the business.

6. Trade Secrets, Restrictive Covenants & Employment Considerations

Most businesses have valuable proprietary information they need to protect. To do so, businesses are required to take reasonable steps to secure that information, which often includes contractual restrictions on the disclosure and use of the information. A business may also use other types of restrictive covenants to protect its assets or goodwill (e.g., covenants not to compete, covenants not to disparage the business, etc.). And when a business hires a new employee, the business must consider any restrictions that may be binding upon that employee from a prior employer. Our panel of IP and employment lawyers will discuss these issues from both a business planning and a litigation perspective, including strategies to avoid or best position a business in the event of litigation.

7. Words of Wisdom from Members of NSU's Entrepreneur and Business Hall of Fame

In 1990, NSU's Huizenga College of Business and Entrepreneurship established an Entrepreneur and Business Hall of Fame, which annually recognizes three influential leaders whose business efforts benefit and leave a lasting imprint on South Florida's entrepreneurship community. During this panel discussion, you will meet and hear from recent Hall of Fame honorees in a discussion moderated by the Dean of the Huizenga College of Business and Entrepreneurship. The discussion will provide valuable insights into what contributed to their successes, and words of wisdom for you to consider as you proceed along your own entrepreneurship journey.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 2023

8. Copyrights and Trademarks

Copyright provides protection for “original works of authorship,” including literary, musical, pictorial, and other creations, and gives copyright owners the exclusive right to reproduce, publicly display or perform, and distribute their works as well as prepare derivative works. Trademarks and service marks provide businesses with a powerful means to differentiate themselves from their competitors in the marketplace. In addition to providing an overview of these important types of intellectual property, our panelists will provide insight into the strategic decisions and practical impacts of creating, monetizing, and protecting these IP rights.

9. Pathways for Innovation Success in Under-Served and Economically Disadvantaged Communities

All start-ups face difficult challenges when starting and growing their businesses. All too often, these common challenges lead to business failure. Start-ups and their founders in under-served and economically disadvantaged communities face those same challenges, and often more, such as: restricted access to capital, limited managerial experience and/or trained workers, inadequate support systems and networks, and societal stigmas. Our panelists will engage in a round-table discussion identifying the unique challenges these founders face as well as existing and desired resources, strategies, and initiatives to create or enhance pathways for innovation success in these communities.

10. Patents

Through the patent laws’ grant of exclusive rights for a limited number of years, a patent owner has the potential to gain a dominant market position, depending on the scope and type of patent. Our speakers will discuss the basics of obtaining, monetizing, and enforcing utility, design, and/or plant patents, as well as the business and legal realities inherent in deciding whether to patent an invention.

11. Onboarding and Managing Human Resources

A workforce is the heart of any organization. This panel of experienced human resource professionals and an employment lawyer will address the practical and legal considerations founders must consider when developing and managing a start-up’s team. Our panelists will provide important insights on assembling and managing your team as well as establishing practices to avoid or minimize practical and legal human resources issues.

12. Being a Successful Innovator: A Discussion with Founders and Mentors

We close our Bootcamp with a panel of start-up founders and mentors who will share their experiences and insights in launching and growing their companies. Having “been there and back,” they will provide examples of the practical challenges they’ve faced, the learnings and wisdom gained from those challenges, and the sacrifices and rewards along the way. Their insights should be of great value to all founders and potential founders.

Sharu Goodwyn. I am passionate about developing & leading high-impact philanthropic programs. I believe that education & economic empowerment are two key drivers in creating a more equitable society.

As a Community Investment Manager at The ODP Corporation (parent company to Office Depot, ODP Business Solutions, Veyer and Varis), I lead Elevate Together – a nonprofit initiative that aims to accelerate the creation, growth and prosperity of Black and Hispanic-owned small businesses through education, access and aid. Since launching in January 2021, Elevate Together has raised $5.8 million from POS retail and ecommerce customer donations, employee giving and corporate sponsorships; awarded 332 grants to minority-owned small businesses in 12 U.S. markets; and provided funding to support the technical assistance programming of the nonprofit partners in the initiative's ecosystem. Elevate Together has been honored by the South Florida Hispanic Chamber (DEI Champion of the Year Award 2022) and the Hispanic Entrepreneurship Initiative (American Dream Award 2022).

Prior to joining the Community Investment team at The ODP Corporation, I spent 20 years in the nonprofit sector as an advocate for diverse, underrepresented communities managing communications and community relations for a number of South Florida and New York based organizations. I believe that my experience in the nonprofit sector and work with historically underserved communities has positively influenced my perspective and approach to philanthropy, grant making and strategic partnerships.

I proudly serve on the board of the Central County Community Development Corporation (CCCDC) & chair the Marketing Committee. The CCCDC (an affiliate of The Urban League of Broward County) is recognized as a Community Housing Development Organization (CHDO) & certified as a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI). I am also the Business Development Lead for the Women of Color Associate Resource Group and a D&I Captain at The ODP Corporation, and a member of the CSR Board.

I received my MPA degree from Columbia University, Bachelors degree in Communications from the University of Pennsylvania and a Diversity, Equity & Inclusion in the Workplace Certificate from the University of South Florida.

My specialties include: program management, philanthropy, strategic partnerships, community relations, grant making, charitable contributions, sponsorships, strategic planning, public relations, event planning, social media, writing and editing, media relations, marketing, brand management, budget management

J.R. McFarling. As Small Business Development Officer at the Urban League's Entrepreneurship Center, J.R. creates alliances within the community while supporting the needs of underserved small business owners. Through his daily activities, JR creates programs and services that support the growing needs of the small business in the community. JR is able to uncover pain points from local small minority businesses to then pinpoint resources including training and capital that is appropriate in assisting their growth as a business owner.

All services offered through the Entrepreneurship Center under J.R.'s guidance are designed to help foster growth of businesses and business ideas. His work is accomplished by community outreach, advanced training programs and technical assistance offered at the Urban League's Entrepreneurship Center. His mission is to help establish, structure, strengthen, empower and grow minority owned businesses while helping to create wealth in the community. J.R. has over 20 years' experience in business development and is passionate about his work in the community.
